Partnership Highlights

Our second annual Theme Semester, Just Living, which will focus on social justice, begins later this month. Grounded in the university's missions of teaching, research, and service, the Theme Semester aims to bring together our academics and communities in a conversation of importance. This semester's topic of social justice will address many related subjects, such as race, identity, environmental justice, and more, and allow for a space of discussion and reflection. As we celebrate Dr.

Martin Luther King Jr. today, I'm reminded of one of his quotes that illustrates our purpose at the University of Iowa:

"Intelligence plus character—that is the goal of true education. The complete education gives one not only power of concentration, but worthy objectives upon which to concentrate."

I look forward to the opportunities that are planned and that will come out of this semester. I encourage you to visit justliving.uiowa.edu to learn more about events, activities, and our partners.

PROGRAM UPDATES

Arts Share

Arts Share had an amazing semester with over 100 events that took place across the state! The spring semester will be even busier with the programming of over 200 events, and ensemble tours that include Dancers In Company, the PanAmerican Steel Band, and the theatre production Baltimore.

Six different writers from the Writers' Workshop and UI's Nonfiction Writing Program participated in the Community Stories Writing Workshop this past fall. This is a program started several years ago by the Office's Faculty Fellow, Rossina Liu. Workshops take place weekly at the Shelter House in Iowa City. Delaney Nolan, one of the UI writers who led workshops, said "Teaching workshops at the Shelter House has been a great experience. In our workshops we read a story and the participants gave thoughtful input on it, then wrote and shared some of their own work. One participant shared an excellent essay that related her own experience dealing with mental illness, and on another day, a participant read a story inspired by her childhood in New York. I've learned a lot from them, and I'm glad we're able to create this space." The workshops will continue during the spring semester and will expand to include the VA Medical Center.

Grant Wood Art Colony

The Grant Wood Art Colony has posted a call for papers and for applications to its Fellowships!

5th Biennial Grant Wood Symposium

Grant Wood Art Colony seeks paper proposals that address the topic for the 5th Biennial Grant Wood Symposium, Myth, Memories, and the Midwest: Grant Wood and Beyond, October 28-29, 2016. This symposium will celebrate the 125th anniversary of Grant Wood's birth by considering a wide array of issues he regarded as important. Proposals are due March 1, 2016.

2016-17 Fellowships

The School of Art and Art History and the Division of Performing Arts has opened the application window for the Grant Wood Fellowships. Early to mid-career artists are encouraged to apply for this generous Fellowship in Printmaking, Painting & Drawing, and Interdisciplinary Performance (Dance). Interested artists can learn more at grantwood.uiowa.edu/fellowship. While this is a rolling application process, artists are encouraged to submit their materials by February 15, 2016.

Project Spotlight: Students in Strategic Communications Campaign present their final project to their community partner, Pathfinders RC&D.

RC&D Partnership

During the fall 2015 semester, three RC&D projects were completed by students, including one which worked with all nine RC&Ds. This past month, these projects wrapped up with final presentations and reports. In addition, project development continued for the spring 2016 semester, as well as identification of new workshop topics. All RC&Ds submitted annual reports, and contracts for the second year of the partnership were completed!

Theme Semester

The spring 2016 Theme Semester, Just Living, begins with an opening reception on Thursday, January 28th at 5 p.m. in the Old Capitol Museum's newest exhibit, THEM: Images of Separation. This exhibit will bring the consequences of injustice to light, featuring historical pop culture depictions of prejudice and stereotypes based on race, religion, gender, sexual orientation, culture, and more.

Before the reception, join the Just Living Theme Semester at the One Button Studio in Hardin Library on Friday, January 22nd to reflect on social justice. Throughout the semester students, faculty, staff, and community members are encouraged to visit the One Button Studio at the Hardin Library and Main Library to record a brief video and submit it to featured in a semester-long video project.
